

THE CANADIAN PHILOSOPHICAL ASSOCIATION 2019 BOOK PRIZE

In philosophy, books are one of the most important means for communicating the results of research; quite often, they represent the culmination of a significant achievement in the course of a philosophical investigation. The Canadian philosophical community is an important contributor, in both English and French, of high quality philosophical research with an international reputation that shows the remarkable dynamism of philosophical life in Canada.

The Canadian Philosophical Association wishes to have these contributions better known and, to this end, has instituted a book prize.

A Description of the Prize

The Canadian Philosophical Association will award a maximum of three prizes for the best books in philosophy published by members of the Association. The amount of the prizes is determined by available resources. The sponsors of the 2019 Prize are the Cambridge University Press and Les Presses de l'Université de Montréal.

Eligibility

For a book to be eligible for a prize, it must make a significant contribution to philosophical research.

The book must be published in English or French between October 1, 2016 and October 1, 2018.

Print and digital editions are both accepted.

The author of the book must be a member of the Canadian Philosophical Association for 2019 before the deadline of November 7, 2018.
